RALLY OF WOMAN'S CLUBS TO BE HELD AT ELBA JULY 8TH

A great rally of Coffee County Woman's Club members will be held at the Elba city school auditorium on Wednesday, July 8th, commencing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., to which all club women in the county are cordially invited and are expected to attend. Visitors are especially invited. This will be the first rally of the kind held in Coffee County and a large attendance and an interesting meeting is anticipated.

A full program is being arranged and several speakers and woman's club workers are expected to be present and take part on the program, among whom are Misses Nell Pickens and Ruth Dobyne, extension workers. Many interesting features are being prepared with the end in view of making the occasion one to be long remembered in the history of woman's clubs in Coffee County. A picnic lunch will be served at the swimming pool, which should prove to be quite an attraction.

A County Council will be organized during the course of the program, in the organization of which all club members are asked to take a part.

The Woman's Clubs of Coffee County have made fine progress in recent years, there being 13 clubs in the county with an membership of 250. Six of these clubs have been formed since Miss Alice Hughes came to Coffee County as home demonstration agent. Many meetings have been held throughout the county and much good has been accomplished. It is hoped that the rally on July 8th will be largely attended and be the means of stimulating an even greater interest among the women of the county in things looking to the betterment of home life.

Elba's Greatest Asset And Her Opportunity

would need ten or more large canning plants right here in Elba. It would take at least five times as many stores to serve the trade and our bank would be prosperous.

There is a great opportunity for some capitalist to buy up all this land, put down wells, arrange for the irrigation, build the home and then sell it in ten-acre lots for $5,000 per lot. There is also an opportunity for some well driller to put down the wells on contract and collect so much each year for the next ten years, plus interest. Some good hustler with a little money might make a fortune in the well drilling business. A man who knows how to prepare the land for irrigation might also shine by fixing places and then selling them to those who do not have the experience in fixing them up.

In my opinion, it will not be five years before the flat river lands in this county will be worth from $100 per low acre, more than they are selling for today. I believe the river lands of Coffee County are destined before long will make Elba a city and will bring to this county thousands of people from other sections.

If you go North you cannot go your well as you can in this county. The land is not flat and the water is too deep to the water and for that reason it is too expensive. The land in Coffee County is the best place for this development, and, so far as I know, there is no better land in the world that is better suited for this form of irrigation than is Coffee County.

Now, what are we going to do about it?" What are the citizens of Elba willing to do about it? And I am asking about this great opportunity being at our door? Do you doubt that it can be done? In my mind I know it can be done, and I believe it is going to be done some day. But it is up to us as to whether or not it will be done now. The citizens of Elba should get in behind this thing and not let up until a definite plan of development has been worked out. Then it should always be financed, promoted and fairly offered to the public. If, and when, this is done, Elba and the surrounding territory will be as famous as the Valley of Virginia Grande and our people will be prosperous and happy.

Jack Was Jean's Hero

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"SIR, I want you to meet Jack Blake—I don't know whether you remember him or not, but he's to come and spend holidays with us when I was at prep school—we used to have bully times!" Silas Meade ran off and left his sister to receive the tall, handsome young man with the grave eyes.

"Sit down, Mr. Blake, and do you care for tea? It is so hot today that I made it iced—sugar?" She gave him the tall frosted glass fragrant with lemon slices and orange peice tea. "Do you like these nut cookies? Asked timidly, she gave him the plate, took a cookie herself and pushed the ten wagon aside. "I never roar a little, Mr. Blake. Silas says you write the most wonderful stories and books, and will soon be a social lion."

"Help!" he said feebly, and took another cookie. "Same nut cookies, same blue plates, same muffin stand, same shady lawn—I have never forgotten a thing, even to the beds of marguerite and pansies?"

"They are all the same, now and forever" laughed the girl, and she added sympathetically. "You were seasick when you arrived, I'll bet! We used to vow to have you here."

He looked embarrassed, as if he were a little ashamed of having been seasick the three earlier days. "I was sorry, I was terribly ill. My head ached when I was quite small, and then I always got sick to the stomach. I'm a coward about it now."

"Why—why—" he stammered as they were Jean all the while?

She nodded. "I didn't understand why you did not recognize me." But he did know that she was very smart in shadow so that no could not see her features, even at the table. Suppose he had forgotten her? She had been such a romantic child, and very impressionable. It was wonderful that he had been her hero so many years.

Silas glanced disparagingly at Jean. "I'm mummy" he grunted and dived into the next big sea.

"Of course you would not remember me, but last time I saw you," Jack said wistfully.

"Last night," said Jean shyly. "It rained, I think," she hastened to say.

"Rained tears when you fell off the fence. Some day, may I remind you of that, and let me be what I offered

"Some day," whispered Jean softly.

Ownership and Interest

If a man has the right to all the profits which may come in the future from a particular article of wealth, he is said to have its complete ownership. If he has a right to only some of the benefits from a particular article of wealth, he is said to own that wealth partially, or have an "interest" in it. For instance, to own a share of railroad stock is to have interest in the article of wealth represented by the company.

Peaches!

PEACHES! Every man can recall some that have come into his life—but the club, rather than the home, is the place to recall them. Warmed by the glowing hearth and pre-dinner cocktails, memory paints them in even more glorifying colors than they appeared in reality. There was that Georgia peach one met at the convention in Atlanta. Peaches may come and go, but that certain one had everything—form, color, distinction. And then there was Elizabeth—a peach from out West in the days before ranches were dude. What a peach! But Oscar interrupts the rosiest reminiscences by announcing:

"Dinner is served, gentlemen."

A Peach With Ginger

And by a happy coincidence the next party is introduced to another peach—Celestine—and this welcome prelude to the dinner has ginger as well as sweetness. This is the way to create a

Peach Celestine: Combine two cups of diced canned peaches and two cups of diced bananas. Pour over one cup of orange juice and three tablespoons of confectioner's sugar. Arrange in glasses and sprinkle eight teaspoons of chopped preserved ginger over the top. This serves eight persons.

If you like your peaches decorative, try a Peach Petal Cup which is made by arranging slices of canned peaches in a fruit cup to represent petals of a flower, alternating with slices of canned grapefruit. In the center, place a maraschino cherry, lightly sprinkled with finely-grated cocoanut so as to make it look like the white variegated center of a flower.*

Sub-Committee Will Discuss Alabama Vote Investigation

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—Plans for future procedure in the Heflin-Bankhead senatorial contest in Alabama will be made at a meeting to be held here Thursday by the Senate sub-committee handling the contest.

The meeting will be attended by Senators Hastings of Delaware, chairman, and Watson of Indiana, Republicans, and George of Georgia, Democrat. Senator Moss of New Hampshire, Republican, and Senator Bratton of New Mexico, Democrat, have notified committee officers here that they would be unable to attend.

It is understood that the committee will determine at the meeting whether to take into consideration the Democratic primary held in Alabama last August. Former Senator Tom Heflin has been insisting that the Hastings committee go into all circumstances surrounding the Democratic primary of 1930 and the prior action of the State Executive Committee in barring as candidates all persons who did not support the party ticket in 1928.

There will be a sharp fight over this proposal on the ground that primary rules do not come under the jurisdiction of the Senate. Should the committee go into the Alabama Democratic primary, it will establish a precedent for Federal supervision of party primaries which would have implication of considerable potential danger to party organization, particularly in the South.

The sub-committee also will decide Thursday the manner of handling the nearly 12,000 ballots temporarily laid aside during the recount of the general election vote. It also must determine what weight shall be attached to the technical irregularities found in numerous boxes.

Panama City Man Fatally Shot; Another Held In Jail

PANAMA CITY, Fla., July 6.—Henry Novak, 35, was shot to death with four bullet wounds in the body, and W. H. Burgess, 35, is in jail, charged with the murder, which is said to have occurred in a hotel room here.

Burgess was reported to have fired eight shots at Novak as the former entered the room where Novak, his wife and a relative of Burgess were talking.

The two men had trouble previously at Pensacola, officers said here.

Novak and his wife and Burgess came to Panama City last week from Naples, Fla., where the Novaks had been working at Fort St. Joe and staying at a hotel here.

The shooting occurred at 4:30 p.m. yesterday. Burgess was said to have walked into the hotel room and opened fire on Novak as the latter walked toward the door.

Sims-Orme Wedding Is Interesting Event

The wedding of Miss Annie Lee Orme and Mr. George Sims was an interesting event in Elba on last Tuesday evening, June 30th, was an event in which many Elbians will be deeply interested. Mrs. Sims was one of the popular teachers in the Elba schools during the past year and endeared herself to a wide circle of friends. Mr. Sims made his home here for two years, having been connected with the State Highway Department. He is quite popular and has many friends here. The following account of the wedding is taken from The Samson Ledger:

Marked by beauty and charm, the marriage of Miss Annie Lee Orme and George Oren Sims was impressively solemnized at sunset Tuesday afternoon, at the Baptist Church of Samson, Alabama, by the Rev. Roy Nieger.

The decorations were unusually lovely and were expressive of the churchly dignity. Within the chancel greenful ferns were banked forming a background for the tall floor baskets of pink gladiola and oleander, on which were tied huge bows of pink tulle. These were alternated with standard candelabra, holding pink tapers.

Pews reserved for the family and intimate friends were marked with bows of pink tulle.

Wedding music was beautifully rendered by a trio composed of Miss Zoalena Barnett of Simsboro, La., soloist; Miss Frances Thornton of Samson, violinist; and Mrs. Rhoda Killgore, Samson, pianist.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Barnett sang "Prayer Perfect," by Stenson, and "All For You," by Brown.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. First to enter were the groomsmen, Ewell Orme of Troy, and Harry Orme, Jr., of Samson, brothers of the bride.

They were followed by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Ewell Orme of Troy and Miss Lucille Dees of Greenville, who were gowned in afternoon frocks of green and pink organdie, fashioned short flat pinafores and short picture hats—mits and shoes were of harmonizing colors. They carried arm sheaves of Fernet roses tied with tulle.

Miss Margaret Thornton of Samson, as maid of honor, wore a becoming model of peach cut work with full skirt, floor length. Her accessories were orchid and she bouquet of Talisman roses was tied with orchid tulle.

The little pretie sowers girls, Betty Sue Smith and Margaret Crenshaw, wore the daintiest of pink organdie, frocks, made off the shoulders, with beruffled skirts which touched the floor, preceded the little ring bearer, Maury Dunn Smith, dressed in a white silk crepe suit, who carried the ring in a white lily.

The bride, who entered with her father, H. C. Orme, Sr., was met at the altar by the groom and Ralph Sims of Hartford, who attended his brother as best man. She was radiant in a formal model of Aquamarine blue silk lace. The bodice was in the prevailing effect and the skirt was a graceful flare, touching the floor. Her accessories were of orchid, the hat being a close fitting hair brush model by Justine. The exquisite bouquet was of pink Pernet roses showered with valley lilies. In her flowers she carried a part of her mother's wedding bouquet of thirty years ago.

During the impressive ring ceremony "Dreams Of Love," by Liszt, was played softly by Miss Thornton on the vivion, accompanied by Mrs. Killgore. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as the recessional.

Later in the evening Mr. Sims and his bride left on an extended wedding trip to the Carolinas. Mrs. Sims' traveling ensemble was of black and white silk crepe, with harmonizing accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Howard College and a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Orme of Samson, and is popular in a large circle of friends.

Mr. Sims is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sims of Enterprise and holds a responsible position with the State Highway Department.

Among the out of town guests were:

G. C. Turnipseed of Ramer, Jno. D. Turnipseed of Ramer; J. L. Mc-Ree of Montgomery; Edgar McRee of Montgomery; John Spencer Orme of Montgomery; Mrs. Mary Mrs. Tom Espy of Hartford; Miss Glennie Mills of Grady, Miss Cloine Neugent of Dublin, Misses Hazel Goff, Mattie Brabham and Eva Lo uSims of Enterprise; Co-Eva Lou Sims of Enterprise; Co-Mr. Miller of Enterprise; Miss Nadine Faircloth of Troy; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar English, Miss Hilda Stephens of Elba and numerous others.

Congressman Steagall Is Seeking Tariff Revision

WASHINGTON, June 28.—In view of the President's debt postponement program, Representative Henry B. Steagall of Alabama, ranking Democratic member of the House banking and currency committee, suggests that Mr. Hoover take the next logical step to relieve the economic distress by recommending a readjustment of the tariff.

In a statement issued today Steagall says:

"The President's program for a one-year moratorium designed primarily to afford immediate assistance to Germany, a debtor nation, recognizes her inability to meet reparations payments. Germany's difficulties are due to her inability to sell her commodities at a reasonable profit. If the United States was at this time a debtor nation, our condition would be similar to that existing in Germany. Why is it not equally necessary that we be able to sell our products at a fair price or a reasonable profit? If we may accept the evidence of the best informed economists, it is due to unreasonably high tariffs and retaliatory tariff measures, that we have been unable to take the next logical step to relieve the economic distress of the world by recommending a readjustment of the tariff, and thus lower the barriers to international trade, which has been the chief contributing factors to the present economic distress at home and abroad."

"There can be no snubbing of the fact that there are three ways by which Europe may rehabilitate her economic affairs so as to discharge her financial obligations to the United States and to put her disordered house in order for the purchase of our farm and factory surpluses and these three ways are entirely within the disposition of our government. One is the opportunity for the interchange of the products that enter into our foreign commerce. Another is the opportunity for the highest tariff will behind which the commodity is produced by the privilege has ever pillaged in the name of protection. Second, gold shipments to the United States would end European finance, encapacity to buy our products. Third, the establishment of a basis for the payment of debts in goods instead of gold."

STEAGALL SPEAKS TO WEST ALABAMA BANKERS—

Congressman Henry B. Steagall, Ozark, was the principal speaker at a banquet held Monday night at the Demopolis Inn by members of the West Alabama Group Bankers Association. Mr. Steagall is the Senior ranking Democratic member of the Banking and Currency committee in Congress, and is well known throughout the country for his knowledge of the fine of banking.

Mr. Steagall's talk was a treat to his listeners. A number gathered in the wonderful suggestions given. Mr. Steagall talked, among other things, about banking methods now being used; how they can be improved upon; and gave some interesting and helpful points that no doubt will be adhered to by all members of the association. He did grave his forecasts of the cause and effect of the depression, just past, and how it affected business circles here and everywhere. Congressman Steagall will long be remembered by the wonderful talk made here.—Demopolis Times.

Heart Attack Proves Fatal To L. B. Musgrove, Jasper

JASPER, Ala., July 4.—L. B. Musgrove, for many years prominent in the political and industrial life of the State, was found dead in bed at his residence here early today, the victim of a heart attack.

Funeral will be held at the First Methodist Church of Jasper, at 4 p.m., tomorrow, and burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery, with the Rev. H. M. Stevenson officiating.

The body will lie in state an hour before the service starts.

Twice Mr. Musgrove was an unsuccessful candidate for United States senator. He was defeated by the late Oscar W. Underwood in 1920 and opposed Senator Hoyo Black and John H. Bankhead in the 1926 Democratic primary.

He was a militant fighter in the prohibition cause.

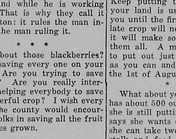
FARMER JONES AND HIS COW PEN

BY W. M. BRUNSON

The Lord knows best and that is why we have not had any rain on our crops. I am not going to complain as it is as well off as we are. Some of our neighbors have been hit by the storms and have had their crops washed out. Others are in the same fix as I am. We have had no rain to speak of and have had to work our crops to keep the grass down. Some of our neighbors have had to plow their crops up and replant them. Others have had to plow their crops up and put out a lot of sweet potatoes.



of things around and said she had not started to moving things. It don't make no difference with me about where things are in the house and how they look just so they are clean, but Sallie says she is going to have things right and I am going to let Sallie have her way about it, as she would have it any way, even if I did object.

I am about to forget to tell you that those ladies at that meeting were not too bipy to sak. Sallie got her turkeys and her cows and I wish you could have heard them asking questions. And believe me Sallie got them told about not living at home. Miss Hughes is a mighty fine lady and we all like her fine, but if we don't watch our Sallie will take her job away from her before long. If Sallie could get a job like that she would be in Heaven.

Last week I told you about your duty about furnishing the necessary chemicals for your cows and you would be surprised to know how the boys have responded to that suggestion. Some of the boys have made troughs as I suggested and some have made different boxes for the different things, while one fellow who did not have the lumber to make a box just got out and dug him out some holes in a log and put his chemicals right in it that same day. You should see those animals go for all those different things. They even surprised me as to the amount they used the first day. Have you fixed yours up yet? No, I can tell you, you have not and will not until you lay that cotton patch by. Nothing enters a man's mind while he is working cotton. That is why they call it King Cotton; it rules the man instead of the man ruling it.

How about those blackberries? Are you saving every one on your farm? Are you trying to save them all? Are you really interested in helping everybody to save this wonderful crop? I wish every man in the county would encourage our folks in saving all the fruit and berries grown.

How about fall garden? It is now time to plant your turnip patch and your rutabagas. If you can get them up now they will be fine by next fall. I know it is hard to get things up at this time of the year, but if you have a damp piece of land that is well fertilized you should be able to get a good fall garden started.

This summer has been mighty hard on us boys who are trying to put out a lot of sweet potatoes. Some of us have called on me to eat that charcoal. If your cows do not eat the chemicals as I told you they would I will keep my word.

* * *

Are you planning to save your chicken feed and your cow feed this fall? It is time for you to plan it right now. Plan it, gather it and put it aside and then use it for that purpose and you will be prosperous. Try it and tell me if I am not correct.

Sub-Committee Will Discuss Alabama Vote Investigation

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—Plans for future procedure in the Heflin-Bankhead senatorial contest in Alabama will be made at a meeting to be held here Thursday by the Senate sub-committee handling the contest.

The meeting will be attended by Senators Hastings of Delaware, chairman, and Watson of Indiana, Republicans, and George of Georgia, Democrat. Senator Moss of New Hampshire, Republican, and Senator Bratton of New Mexico, Democrat, have notified committee officers here that they would be unable to attend.

It is understood that the committee will determine at the meeting whether to take into consideration the Democratic primary held in Alabama last August. Former Senator Tom Heflin has been insisting that the Hastings committee go into all circumstances surrounding the Democratic primary of 1930 and the prior action of the State Executive Committee in barring as candidates all persons who did not support the party ticket in 1928.

There will be a sharp fight over this proposal on the ground that primary rules do not come under the jurisdiction of the Senate. Should the committee go into the Alabama Democratic primary, it will establish a precedent for Federal supervision of party primaries which would have implication of considerable potential danger to party organization, particularly in the South.

The sub-committee also will decide Thursday the manner of handling the nearly 12,000 ballots temporarily laid aside during the recount of the general election vote. It also must determine what weight shall be attached to the technical irregularities found in numerous boxes.

Woman's Club Rally Being Held In Elba

As The Clipper goes to press (Wednesday afternoon) the rally of Woman's Clubs of Coffee County is being held at the school auditorium. Many club members from all parts of the county are in attendance. Several prominent speakers and club workers are present and an interesting program is being carried out.

A picnic dinner at the swimming pool at the noon hour was much enjoyed by all who participated.

106th Ammunition Train Goes To Camp Beaureg'rd

Fifty-seven officers and members of the 106th Ammunition Train, Alabama National Guard, left Elba last Saturday morning for Camp Beauregard, Alexandria, La., for the annual encampment.

The local organization in the past has made a splendid showing during the two weeks training at the encampment, and it is expected that a new record will be brought back this year.

Panama City Man Fatally Shot; Another Held In Jail

PANAMA CITY, Fla., July 6.—Henry Novak, 35, was shot to death with four bullet wounds in the body, and W. H. Burgess, 35, is in jail, charged with the murder, which is said to have occurred in a hotel room here.

Burgess was reported to have fired eight shots at Novak as the former entered the room where Novak, his wife and a relative of Burgess were talking.

The two men had trouble previously at Pensacola, officers said here.

Novak and his wife and Burgess came to Panama City last week from Naples, Fla., where the Novaks had been working at Fort St. Joe and staying at a hotel here.

The shooting occurred at 4:30 p.m. yesterday. Burgess was said to have walked into the hotel room and opened fire on Novak as the latter walked toward the door.

Mr. R. O. Sawyer, one of northwest Coffee's progressive farmers, brought a beautiful cluster of peaches—16 on one small branch—to The Clipper office Wednesday that have caused considerable comment by those who have seen them. Mr. Sawyer said that his trees are all hanging full of fruit of good size.

BROAD-GAUGE CHARITY

In the will of the late Aaron Naumberg of New York large sums were left to a wide range of charitable and educational institutions reflecting the broad sympathies of that son of a Jewish rabbi, who had amassed great wealth.

Jewish charities were naturally remembered liberally in Mr. Naumberg's last testament, but Protestant and Catholic charitable institutions also came in for a generous share. Besides, he gave a substantial sum to the Tuskegee Institute for negroes, to Harvard University, to the American Museum of Natural History, to the Philharmonic Society, and other worthy enterprises.

More and more are great captains of industry and business getting the habit of leaving portions of their wealth to be used for the public welfare. Their bequests to educational, religious, scientific and charitable institutions have been vast beyond computation, either in terms of money or in their value in the betterment of social conditions.

Among all who have thus contributed their wealth to these worthy objects, few have illustrated a finer spirit of human brotherhood than Aaron Naumberg, a Jew.

WORK AND PLAY

Farm people work too many hours, according to Dr. Seale Harris, one of the South's most prominent physicians, who declares that on eight-hour day is needed on the farm as well as elsewhere.

He thinks that the farmer gets into the habit of working long hours and consequently does not put forth as effective efforts as he would if he limited his daily period of labor. Dr. Harris says:

"Farmers ought to be encouraged to work strenuously eight hours a day and then take more rest and recreation, instead of working feebly fifteen hours a day as many of them do."

While most farmers would resent being told that they work "feebly," there is no doubt that when one knows he is going to stick on the job for fifteen hours a day he will not exert himself as energetically as he would for a shorter period.

Vigorous work relieved by a liberal amount of rest and recreation seems to be a good formula for health and efficiency.

NEWS ITEMS OF 1776

Items from old newspapers are of interest to many, and so we have found a few taken from a copy of The Massachusetts Sun, published in Worcester on July 17, 1776, the front page of which was devoted to the Declaration of Independence, then less than two weeks old. A news letter from New York said:

"On Wednesday last the Declaration of Independence was read at the head of each brigade of the Continental Army at or near New York, and everywhere received with loud huzzas and utmost demonstrations of joy. The same evening the equestrian statue of George III. was by the sons of freedom laid prostrate in the dirt. The head, whereon this monument was made is to be run into bullets, to assimilate with the brains of our inhumated adversaries, who, to gain a pepper-corn, have lost an Empire."

A resolution by the House of Representatives at Watertown requested that people of the colony make their leaden window weights for the making of bullets.

Among other notices was one stating that there were "a considerable number of prisoners in the gaol, who are willing to go and do service if proper persons should appear to hire them."

Delinquent subscribers were a problem in those early days, as they have been ever since, it appears from a card from the publisher who thanked those readers who had paid up, adding: "He begs that such as have not paid him would be so considerate as to think of the great disadvantage it must be to him to have so many small sums in different hands, therefore would now request that they would pay their respective balances, which will greatly oblige your humble servant, Isaiah Thomas."

After 155 years a good many publishers may still find Mr. Thomas's courteous suggestion quite applicable to present conditions.

BASEBALL IN JAPAN

An interesting account of the enthusiasm for baseball which now exists in Japan is told by Harry Kingman, who has served as coach for Oriental teams.

Since its introduction into the Flowery Kingdom about 40 years ago, by some Japanese engineers who had learned the game while staying in the United States, baseball has gained great popularity, not only in the cities, but in the villages.

Keio University was among the first schools to take up the sport, after a group of students had translated a Spalding rule-book into Japanese. The game's greatest impetus resulted from the enthusiasm of Professor Isa Abe of Waseda University, who is called the father of Japanese baseball." Under his leadership, teams from the university have made several tours of the United States.

Even the Christian missionaries in Japan cross bats with monks of the Buddhist monasteries. In one such game, it is told that in the last half of the ninth inning, with the score 1 to 1, "His Holiness, the Abbot of the monastery, playing shortstop, booted a hot grounder and allowed the winning run of the missionaries to trickle across the plate."

SPARE THE BIRDS

Although some varieties of birds are considered a great nuisance by farmers and others, it is doubtful that any of these feathered tribes are more destructive than useful.

Birds are the natural enemies of insects and insects are the greatest enemies of mankind. Scientists have declared that without continual research and the employment of improved means of combatting insect pests they would overrun the world and destroy all other life, including man.

The rapidity with which certain insects multiply is beyond the imagination. For example, a pair of pucerons, a species of flea, will in one year produce more than 441 quadrillion young. One small bird, such as a tomtit, will destroy about 1,500 of these in a day; a partridge will eat 30,000 white grubs in a year. Various birds have their favorite insects upon which they prey, but all eat practically any insect which crosses their path.

With this ever present army of insects to combat, we can hardly have too many birds. Not only out of humane sentiment, but as an actual protection to civilization, the birds should be spared.

HOT DOG VS. COLLEGE

George J. Deck of Buffalo was poor but ambitious when at the age of 18 he determined to have a college education. But hot dogs blocked his way.

Casting about for some means of earning his way through college, Deck tried running a hot dog stand and met success beyond his fondest expectations. Business was so good that he could not take time to go to school. Soon he opened additional stands, all of which prospered.

Recently he bought out six competitors and now has what virtually amounts to a "hot dog trust" in his home city, with a warehouse, a bakery, a fleet of 12 trucks and 16 hot dog stands. His annual turnover is more than $500,000 and he draws from his business a salary equal to that of the President of the United States—$75,000 a year.

But it looks as if he will have to worry along without a college degree. Still he holds a very desirable, if not dignified, title. He is known as "the hot dog king."

FEW IMPEACHMENTS

Only eleven Federal officeholders have been impeached since the foundation of the United States government. Of those three were removed from office, one was expelled from the Senate and another was found not guilty on technicalities. Three impeached were:

Senator William Blount of Tennessee, charged with conspiracy, expelled by the Senate in 1797 and impeachment dropped. He later served as president of the Tennessee state senate.

Judge John Pickering of New Hampshire, removed from office for drunkenness, 1804.

Supreme Court Justice Samuel Chase, acquitted of misconduct, 1805.

Judge James Peck of Missouri, acquitted of mistreating counsel, 1831.

Judge West W. Humphreys of Tennessee, removed for supporting the secession, 1862.

President Andrew Johnson, acquitted of charges of high crimes and misdemeanors, 1868. The vote, 35 guilty, 19 not guilty, was less than the two-thirds necessary to convict.

Secretary of War William W. Belknap, acquitted of bribery charges, 1876.

Judge Charles Swayne of Florida, acquitted of misconduct, 1905.

Judge Alston G. Dayton of West Virginia, impeached but proceedings abandoned, 1915.

Judge George W. English of Illinois, resigned under impeachment, 1926.

A PREACHER'S FAREWELL

Probably it is an old story, but anyway it's full of logic. A preacher had been greatly discouraged and had sought a new field of labor. He happened to have a friend in the governor, to whom he appealed, and not in vain. He got a political job. In taking leave of his flock he said:

"Brothers and sisters, I must say good-bye.

"I don't think God loves you because none of you ever die.

"I don't think any of you love each other, because none of you ever get married.

"I don't think you love me, because you have not paid my salary.

"Your donations are moldy fruit and wormy apples—and by their fruits ye shall know them.

"I am going to a better place. I am going to be chaplain of the penitentiary.

"Where I go ye can not yet come, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the good Lord have mercy upon you. Good-bye."

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes the acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water neutralizes instantly many times that much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggstore.

OBITUARY OF FLOSSIE VIRGINIA PHELPS

Little Flossie, daughter of Mr and Mrs. A. D. Phelps, was called home to Heaven on June 25, 1931 after an illness of seven days. She was aged one year, five months and five days when the end came. Besides her parents she leaves a brother and one sister and a host of relatives to mourn her death.

She was laid to rest in Eden Cemetery, Rev. T. C. Mahan conducting the funeral services. Everything that loving hands could do was done, but God saw fit to call little Flossie home to walk around the Great White Throne. Weep not, loved ones, for we must remember that as Jesus we live we must pass through the valley of death. But we have the promise of our dear Savior of an eternal home in Heaven which He has gone to prepare if we will come unto Him and abide in Him.

Let us watch and pray while lingering here below that we may not enter into temptation but may be ready when death calls us home that we may meet our Savior and loved ones there to abide forever. True, it is hard to part with our loved ones here, but we must submit to the Lord's will, for he never makes a mistake.

I want to say to the relatives to cheer up, for this is the Lord's work. It seems like it is more than can be borne, but God has promised never to forsake us. She is done with the troubles of this world. She is now in the arms of her blessed Jesus, where there is no more sorrow or suffering, but one eternal day. She has just gone on a few days ahead of us. Could we but see her smiling face, delighted with that happy place! Could we but hear her little tongue so sweetly sing the heavenly song! We shalls strive to meet her in that home so bright.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT

"Well, nobody asked you to!" Nellie stormed. "If you can suit yourself, you know."

"Shoah ain to, Miss Murray," the kid grimly assured her, and loped off down the canyon without once looking back.

He looked back up the canyon and rode into the willows. At the fence the kid turned and rode toward the dry creek bed where the ground was rough and humpy, gouged with spring freshets and undermined by burrowing small animals. When he found a spot where the fence went up over a small ridge he deliberately spurred and kicked the wires loose from three posts, forced them to the ground and anchored them there with a couple of rocks and led his horse across.

He kept going straight ahead until the willow growth ceased on higher ground, and then he knew what sort of place it was that had need of a fence like that.

Some one was running cattle in here, all right. The edge of the thicket was broken and trampled where other cattle had come for shelter, and there was cattle sign everywhere.

The kid's nerves began to tingle a little. Cattle bawling!

Shoah would be funny if he was to run right onto her bunch or cattle. He better if he'd let her alone entirely, because there is somehow his spirits rose a little at the perfectly logical reason he had just discovered for wanting her with him.

The kid lifted his hat and eyed the reddish waves of hair back off his forehead, settled his bullet-scarred hat at a careless tilt, pulled his battered gun into position on his thigh and rode forward with an eager gleam in his eyes.

From the pole corral set back in a thin grove of cottonwood and box alder, a gray dusty cloud rose into the hot sunshine at noon. Within the corral fence a small herd of cattle tramped uneasily round and round, swerving and ducking aside when a cowboy's loop snaked out to the victims that head of a striking rattler.

A man on gunred outside unhooked the chain that hung down the gate to let out a rider dragging a husky bull calf over toward a branding fire. Two men on their calf wrestlers grabbed and threw him on his side with a thump.

A man lifted a branding iron deliberately out of the blaze, looked at it, swept it to and fro in the air, looked at it again and decided that it was about the right heat, and walked over to the calf and put it there, with two sweating cowboys braced and holding him motionless, one half sprawled across his head, the other hanging for dear life to a leg.

The kid, his stealthy approach unnoticed in the excitement, rode up to the edge of the corral and watched. Babe Garner! Babe, with bulging eyes and a sallow, indoor tinge to his swarthy face. Babe, with a question in his cold gray eyes and a smile on his face.

"Hell's brass buttons!" cried Babe, swearing his very choicest oath, kept for special occasions. "Where the hell did you drop down from, Tiger Eye?"

"Rain washed me down the canyon, Babe."

"Oh! Man send yuh over?" Joe Hale tried to make his voice sound casual, but there was an undertone of constraint which he failed to control.

"Nevah did see Walter Bell since that night I toted Babe into the ranch."

"Oh," Joe studied on that. "Thought likely you come from the Poole."

"Awn my way to the Poole, but I done changed my mind!"

"Oh. Kinda outa the way, this calf pasture, and I jest kinda wondered. Want to see me for anything? Wanta go to work again?"

"Nuoh obliged to yuh'all. I talk to th' old feller, Joe."

"Yeah? Sorry to see yuh quit the Poole."

Too dawgoned polite to be natural. Peahed like Joe was getting kinda suspicious. Babe, too. Babe was edging around in a way like, as if he wanted to get in back of the bunch of them. Had he could look in his eyes. The kid knew that look now for the killer look.

Get around behind and shoot a bullet into a man's back—that was Babe's stripe. The kid shifted his position a little and looked at Babe.

"What outfit yuh ridin' for now, Kid?" Joe looked up from kicking a half-burnt cigaret butt into the fire.

"Ridin' foh Missus Murray, down in the valley. Widow woman. Old man that was killed and put his mortgage on the Bell. Last time they shot Babe, that was her husband. "The one Babe got the bounty on."

Eyes turned sidewise to meet other guarded glances. Babe's shoulders jerked backward as if from a blow on the chest, but no one spoke.

"Last some cattle last night," the kid continued, in his purring drawl. "I come out afteh them."

The atmosphere of the Poole men froze for a second. Only Babe, knowing the kid of old, waited for his gun and dropped it as the kid's pitiless bullet went crashing through his knuckles at his hame. The hands of the two calf wrestlers went up as if they had been jerked with guns and rope. The man on horseback clapped spurs to his horse and galloped like mad away from there. Joe Hale knew better than to try a shot. He remembered too vividly how Jess Markel had fared with the kid over at the Poole.

Babe remembered, too, and a horror grew in his face as he stared at his numbed and bleeding hand. He'd rather be dead than crippled—he always had said so—and now his knuckles would be stiff and useless to pull a trigger. But when he glanced up and saw the kid looking after the fleeing horseman he chanced a shot with his left gun. But the kid didn't seem to need his eyes to tell what was going on. He caught Babe's movement and fired almost without looking.

"Line up with yuh backs this way," said the kid softly to Joe and the two calf wrestlers.

They did so in haste—all but Babe, who had crumpled down limply in the sand, with his bleeding hand crossed above his head and his face hidden in his arms. The kid pulled their guns from the sagging holsters, emptied them of cartridges and tossed them into the bushes behind him.

The meeked-looking wrestler worked with trembling haste under the cold stare of Tiger Eye. Between them they had Babe, Hale and the other wrestler to tenapult, yo'all oughta see mine!" The kid gathered up the reins, mounted and swung alongside her.

"You? Why, Bob Reeves! You know very well I'm the meanest thing on earth! After all you've done, to—to do what I did and—and talk the way I've talked to you, it makes me so ashamed—"

"Aw, hush! When yo'all talk that-a-way, yo' make me feel like—like my hand against a rock! Yo'all don't know how I felt this last month, thinking I had nothing but hate from yo'all—"

"Hate!" Cried Nellie Murray, as one who stands aghast before so harsh a word. "Why, if you only knew—". And then she stopped and began to blush furiously, so that the crimson flood rushed up to the band of yellow hair on her forehead.

The kid reached out and gathered Nellie Murray into his arms.

The kid sat on the ground with his back against a tree and drew his mouth organ across his smiling lips while he tapped the time with his foot. Played the kid, over and over again, while his prisoners sat and listened, and wondered what kind of a man was Tiger Eye Reeves, who could shoot a man in cold blood, capture three others who had thought they were well able to take care of themselves, and then sit all the afternoon playing that starved mouth organ like he hadn't a care in the world.

The kid didn't know, or care what they thought about him. The kid was living in a world of his own, where a girl with yellow hair loved him enough to marry him and settle down. Gone into Banks now after help and the sheriff, to come and take this bunch with the evidence of the cattle they had left behind them in the corral. Gone to bring a doctor out to fix up Babe's hands. But he'd be back all right. And when she got here, the kid would take her over to "Z" ranch and they'd tell her mother there was going to be a man in the family that Jonah would be right on the job.

He played "Listen to the Mockin Bird," with more warble and trills and low happy notes than he ever dreamed of putting into a song. The other hare and doolate ranch where Nellie lived he made a parodise in his dreams. Honeysuckle ought ever go here, all right. He'd send down to his mother and have her get him a pair of mocking birds. Take her and her mother back down to Texas, only Pap's old enemies would want to go on with the feud and he'd have to kill somebody. Reckon the killing was about over, up here.

The afternoon waned and the Poole men began to swear at the chill and the cramp in their limbs, but the kid never even heard them. He was so busy making plans for the future. Darkness came, and there very still, trying to realize the amazing truth that Nellie Murray was going to marry him. She loved him. She said she did.

He was still sitting there, two hours later, when Nellie came with the doctor and the sheriff and half a dozen men, who worried the kid with questions and talk. But that ended, and he was riding away with Nellie, hitting straight for the valley and the ranch his dreams had glorified.

THE END.

More Cottonseed Meal Will Be Fed

As a result of recent experiments more cottonseed meal is being fed to work animals and to hogs. Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the animal husbandry group of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn, says that many stations have experimented with cottonseed meal as a portion of the ration for work animals and hogs, and that recommendations are made on a basis of these experiments.

The cottonseed meal limit is two pounds per day for animals doing light to heavy work, and this amount should be attained gradually, starting with a fractional part of a pound and increasing it up to a maximum of two pounds. One pound of cottonseed meal will replace two pounds of corn.

Grain, cottonseed meal, cotton-

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

SLUGGISH FEELING

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught off and on for twenty-five years," writes Mr. Dave Stewart, of 1912 E. 2nd St., Austin Texas. "They used it in my father's home for many years and it was our general family medicine.

"My health was good, and that is about all I ever took. I used it for constipation and bilious sick headaches. It is a fine medicine to take when a man gets up in the morning feeling dull and sluggish. After a course of it I feel fine. It rids the system of poison which comes from constipation."

WHEN you set out to buy tires, don't you really want the most miles and the utmost in safety at the lowest possible price.

That being your objective, which tire should you buy?

If the experience of 20,000,000 motorists means anything, you should certainly buy Goodyears.

But if you try to puzzle through the welter of statistics on thickness, weights and diameters you lose the main issue and are as much at sea as ever.

The one and only reliable guide for you to follow is the seasoned preference of the public.

And that preference is overwhelmingly for Goodyear.

This fact expressed year after year by Goodyear's great leadership is concretely told again in the findings of an impartial investigation made by an [illegible] dependable institution that asked 205,000 car owners this simple question:

QUESTION: "Regardless of price, convenience, etc., what make of tire do you consider the BEST tire made?"

HOW CAR OWNERS VOTED ON THE QUESTION "WHAT TIRE IS BEST?"

BRADSHAW NEWS

The health of this community is very good. Everybody is about up with their work as it is so dry, and it is time for us all to go on a vacation. I guess everybody enjoyed the Fourth.

The birthday celebration at Mr. J. W. Donaldson's on last Sunday was enjoyed by a large crowd. The occasion was in honor of Mr. Donaldson, whose birthday is on July 7th, and his daughter, Mrs. Belle Sims, whose birthday is on the 4th of July. They had a regular family reunion, with lots of good things to eat and plenty of iced tea to drink, and some good music. It seemed that everybody enjoyed themselves.

All of the family was present except five of the grandchildren. The children present were: Mr. Grover C. Donaldson of Bradshaw; Mr. C. D. Donaldson of Troy; Mr. E. E. Donaldson of Montgomery; Mrs. Belle Sims of Bradshaw; Mrs. Lela Donaldson, a daughter-in-law, Orlando, Fla.; twenty-five grand children; nine great-grand children and a host of other relatives and friends.

Mr. Donaldson was 67 years old and his daughter is 39. We hope to meet with them on such occasions for many more years and enjoy ourselves. May God bless us all and especially the good ladies who were so free with their good things to eat.

CARD OF THANKS

To our many friends who were so good to us during the sickness and death of our husband and father, we thank you for every act of mercy and kindness shown us. We are so thankful to the ones who gave of their means and also to the ones who came and worked on the farm for us. We thank Dr. Woodall for his medical aid and his readiness to always come to our help. May God bless each of you.

LIBERTY NEWS

Here we are in the seventh month of the year! My, how time flies! We are nearly ready to lay by our crop and it will soon be gathering time!

Cotton weeds are very small but seem to be quite full of forms. You see, it has been quite dry. Some have had very good seasons, while others have had just a few showers. Right here we have not had a good rain for nearly seven weeks, and if we don't get rain in a few days we will not make much corn, and if we don't make corn, woe be unto us! But the Great Hand that turned water into wine knows what to do, so we just trust and obey.

The boll weevil is here and is pretty busy, but the hot sun has been somewhat against him, but you remember he has done more than anything else has done. He carried cotton from five cents per pound to 40c per pound—quite a worker, isn't he?

We are having a nice time out here in the sticks. Having good meetings, plenty of blackberries, beans, corn, peas, chicken. Will soon have peaches, some watermelons, figs, plenty of hot sunshine and fresh air. So it is not so bad after all to live out here in the sticks.

There are a lot of people wanting milk cows. There were a lot of nice heifers sold last week that should have been kept. They would have been giving milk by this time. I want to say to everyone who does not own a cow, just buy a heifer and before you think of it you will have a fine cow.

We are glad to say that we are all enjoying good health out here at present.

Rev. J. H. Fussell was at his post Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The people met a little early and enjoyed themselves by singing, which was led by Bro. Henry Ellenburg. We want to meet early next first Sunday and sing a while, and don't forget the meeting will run a few days. We invite everyone to come and help in the meeting.

Mr. M. C. Mays was called to see his brother, Mr. J. V. Mays, who has been quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Adams visited Mr. Adams' parents at Kinston the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Button Grimes and family visited Mrs. S. H. Boland Sunday.

Mr. Charlie Stokes of Gadsden visited his brother, J. M. Stokes, Saturday. Charlie was looking fine and seemed to enjoy visiting his old home and meeting old friends.

In closing, will say that we enjoy The Clipper very much. The editor is so kind to us all.

H. I. BOLAND.

Baked Stuffed Peppers: Make a white sauce of one and one-half tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and three-fourths cup milk. Add a few drops lemon juice and one 7-ounce can flaked fish. Prepare green peppers and fill with the fish mixture. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until brown on top and the peppers become tender.

Lima Bean and Tomato Salad: Dip two large tomatoes in boiling water, then in cold water, and remove skins. Chill, cut in halves and place one-half on each leaf of lettuce. Combine one-half of a No. 2 can of lima beans, one small onion, four tablespoons chopped celery and salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with four tablespoons mayonnaise and pile on top of the tomato halves.*

A large portion of Elba's radio fans were intently listening in on the heavyweight championship fight Friday night, held at Cleveland, Ohio, between Champion Max Schmeling of Germany and W. L. "Young" Stribling of Macon, Ga. Local sentiment was strongly in favor of the Georgia boy, but he was considerably outclassed by the champion and received a severe beating. The referee awarded the fight to the German on a technical knockout in the fifteenth round. We understand that Coffee County's genial circuit clerk, L. B. Clark, had a ringside seat at the big fight.

Mrs. Arthur Joe Grant of Dothan visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lee, during the week-end.

Mrs. Lucy Byrd of Atlanta was a guest of her sister, Mrs. F. H. Murphree, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bonneau, Misses Hazel Bonneau, Minnie Pearce, and Annie Laurie Bullard have returned from a week's stay at Seagrove, Fla.

STATE - WIDE REVIVAL MEETINGS BEING PLANNED FOR

One of the most unique and far-reaching movements ever undertaken in the history of evangelism is now under way in Alabama. Plans are being worked out for a series of interdenominational, simultaneous revival meetings to be held in many sections of the State for a period of three weeks next January.

This state-wide revival is being sponsored by Rev. Bob Jones, native Alabamian and one of America's best known evangelists. The movement is meeting with the approval of local ministers of all denominations everywhere, according to those who are working out the plans.

Some of the leading ministers of this and other states are cooperating in this movement to bring to the people of Alabama one of the greatest spiritual revivals ever experienced. All agree that the greatest need in our country today is a genuine spiritual revival that will turn the people to God and to righteous living.

It is not intended that these meetings take the place of any meetings planned by local churches but it is intended that the state-wide revival meetings supplement the work of and greatly help the churches everywhere. The month of January was selected because it was felt that at that time of the year it is possible to secure many of the outstanding ministers and evangelists who could not be secured at other times of the year.

Mr. W. G. Haymaker of Winona Lake, Indiana, who has been associated with Rev. Bob Jones and many of the well known evangelists of America, is the Field Representative for the state-wide revival meetings. Mr. Haymaker was in Elba recently conferring with the ministers and laymen regarding plans for one of these revival meetings being held for the people of this section. Mr. Haymaker reports that he found a real desire on the part of the people in this section for a genuine revival meeting and both Rev. Tubb and Rev. Franklin have promised to cooperate to make the proposed meeting in Elba a genuine success.

People of all denominations in this section are to be included in the plans and everybody, regardless of denomination, is invited to have a part in the proposed revival meeting.

Arrangements have been made to hold the revival meetings at the court house. This has been made possible through the courtesy and cooperation of Judge Carnley and the county officials. The court house will be an ideal place for such a revival meeting, for it is a place that everybody feels free to go. The court house is well heated and lighted and can be made very comfortable for those who attend.

Prayer is so vital and so absolutely necessary in this great undertaking that those in charge of the plans have set Wednesday of each week as a time for people all over the state to meet and pray for a revival. All genuine spiritual awakenings have come when the people prayed and if an old-time revival comes to this state it will come only in answer to the earnest prayers of the people. State-wide Wednesday morning cottage prayer meetings are now being held in many sections of the state and hundreds of people are meeting from 10:00 to 10:30 for prayer.

A plan is under way in Elba to joni in these Wednesday morning cottage prayer meetings. A committee of women has been appointed to arrange for these meetings to be held in the homes throughout the town each Wednesday morning for half-hour from 10 to 10:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend these prayer meetings.

A committee has been appointed to arrange for a series of men's prayer meetings to be held in the business section of town for the business men.

It is planned to have a large chorus choir during the revival meetings and all who will sing will be invited to take part in the music. A program of gospel music will be given at each service and the music is expected to be one of the special features of the revival meetings.

From time to time announcements will be made through the columns of The Clipper and thru the churches regarding plans for the coming revival.

Boy At Opp Dies As Lightning Hits

OPP, Ala., July 13.—Clyde Joyner, 15, of Bartow, Fla., was struck by lightning and instantly killed Sunday about 2 p.m. while visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Benton here.

The youth, with Mrs. Benton and her son, Henry D., and a brother and two sisters, was on the sleeping porch of the Benton home, during a bad electrical storm. Clyde was standing at the foot of an iron bed, near an electric light socket, with his hands resting on the foot of the bed when the bolt struck, killing him instantly. Henry D. Benton, who was standing about two and a half feet from him, was shocked by the bolt, and knocked down, but was not seriously injured.

Benson Funeral Home of this city took charge of the body, and soon after the tragic accident, left for Bartow, Fla., arriving there early Monday morning. Burial will be in Bartow.

Mr. Joyner, the boy's father; Clyde, one brother and two sisters had been visiting the Bentons for several days, en route to their home after a vacation with relatives and friends in North Alabama and Georgia.

Impromptu speeches were made by Rev. C. S. Thomas, Judge J. A. Carnley, Dr. W. C. Braswell and others.

The next regular meeting will be held at Ino Baptist Church on the first Sunday afternoon in August.

ROYAL AMBASSADORS MET MONDAY NIGHT—

Before the meeting was closed parts were given out to be learned for next Friday night week. We all voted to change the meeting from Monday night to Friday night. After that we voted to visit the jail one day next week and have preaching. The meeting was closed by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Dismissed by sentence prayers, led by Howard Smith and closed by Rudolph Maddox.

HI LEAGUERS GAVE CREDITABLE PLAY LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

The three-act comedy drama entitled "He's My Pal," given by members of the Elba Epworth Hi League at the school auditorium last Friday night, drew a fair-sized audience and all who attended felt that they had been well repaid for their effort of going to see a play on such a hot night.

The plot was a good one, combining pathos and humor in a happy manner that kept the audience in good spirit. The six young ladies and an equal number of young men who composed the cast acted their parts well and showed considerable talent. In fact, it was considered quite remarkable the way they mastered their lines in the very short time they had to practice, as they only commenced practicing a little more than a week before giving the performance. Three weeks is usually considered short enough time to perfect a play of this nature. The participants received numerous compliments on the success of their efforts.

Following is the cast of characters:

Tom Spark, a young carpenter, Roscoe Deal.
Wally Allen, in advertising, Henry Clark.
Ma Averill, everybody's mother, Mary June McDowell.
Lark Marie Sumner, Ma's niece, engaged to Wally, Sara Mathis.
Calvin McCay, a henpecked husband, Malcolm Prescott.
Mrs. Blossom McCay, his wife and boss, Hazel Busbee.
Harry Booth, in real estate, Harold Deal.
Smudge, the cook at Ma Averill's, Gladys Miller.
Kitten Blake, a beauty specialist, Frances McDowell.
Dick Smith, a real estate salesman, Ernest Lunsford.
Roger Gail, Wally's pal, Mike Maddox.
Mona Spark, Tom's sister, an ugly duckling, Ethel Louise Mitchell.

A delightful feature of the evening's program were readings given between acts by little Misses Mary Louise Morgan and Lois Martin, both of whom possess unusual talent and never fail to greatly please an Elba audience whenever they appear. It is nip-and-tuck between these two little artists as to which posseses the more talent. If the writer were called upon to judge the merits of these two readers par excellence he would have to call it a draw with a plus mark after each name.

Mrs. Mike Maddox, who directed the play, is to be congratulated upon its success.

Little Nell Bryan won first prize for selling the greatest number of tickets to the play, she having the fine record of selling 35 tickets.

BEAUTIFUL LAWN PARTY AT WHITMAN HOME—

One of the prettiest and most enjoyable parties of the season was that given by Mesdames Jim Whitman, Gordon Mathis and George Collier, on the beautiful lawn at the home of Mrs. Whitman, on last Friday night, July 10.

A profusion of crepe Myrtle in baskets placed here and there, with a background of yellow daisies, made the lawn more attractive. Lights were strung at intervals to give light to this happy throng of players, who were seated at eleven tables. After several progressions the hostesses served an elaborate plate lunch to Mr. and Mrs. Terry Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. William Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. John Bonneau, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Crook, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Levy Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Messick, Mr. and Mrs. O. Dowling, Mr. and Mrs. Byrd Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Young, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Lubert, Mrs. Lander Curenton and son, Lander, of Greenville; Mrs. H. M. Abercrombie of Petrey, Ala.; Mrs. George Morrow of Moultrie, Ga.; Mrs. Forest Talbot; Messrs. Walter Whitman, Jr., Jim Whitman, Gordon Mathis and George Collier, and the hostesses.

After playing until a late hour every one agreed that this was one of the most enjoyable parties of the year.

Mesdames C. P. Hayes and C. E. Dorsey spent Monday and Tuesday in Montgomery.

The series of three games scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday of this week between the Elba and Louisville ball teams was postponed on account of wet grounds. These two clubs played a hard-fought series two weeks ago in which the visitors won two games out of three. It is hoped by local fans that another series can be arranged. The strong team from Brantley played here yesterday (Wednesday).

Miss Alice Boyd, who has been one of the instructors of summer session at Alabama College, is visiting her mother, Mrs. W. P. Boyd.

Rev. L. W. Tubb Will Hold Revival At Perote, Ala.

Rev. L. W. Tubb, pastor of the Elba Methodist Church, went to Montgomery Wednesday morning to attend the Young People's Assembly for three days, after which he will go to Perote, Ala., where he will do the preaching in a revival meeting which will start Sunday morning and continue through Friday night. Rev. Tubb will be absent from his pulpit next Sunday but will return for his regular appointments the following Sunday.

At the eleven o'clock preaching hour next Sunday the Sunday School will render a program to which the public is invited. There will be no services at the Methodist Church next Sunday night.

Aged Coffee Citizen Is Claimed By Death

Mr. Gus Cardwell, 82 years of age, died at his home on Glenwood, Route 2, on Friday, July 3rd. He was ill only one week of heart trouble.

He is survived by three sons and three daughters, besides a number of other relatives. Burial occurred at Zion Chapel on Sunday following his death, and services were conducted by Ethel Jacobs. Elba Hardware & Furniture Company had charge of funeral arrangements.

The friends of Mrs. F. D. Veal are glad that she is much improved after several days illness.

Miss Nan Marley, who has been attending summer school at Womans College, Montgomery, has returned to her home.

ELBA TERRITORY IS DRENCHED BY FINE RAINS PAST WEEK

Elba and surrounding territory were visited Sunday afternoon by the biggest rain that has fallen in this section for several months, about two inches of precipitation falling in about four hours. It fell in a steady downpour that allowed it to soak in and do the most possible good. Another fine shower fell Monday afternoon with the result that the ground is now pretty well soaked. Reports from over the county indicate that most sections were visited Sunday by more or less heavy rainfall and the optimistic spirit of farmers in particular and every one in general is considerably increased.

Although a good deal of the corn was damaged by the drouth which has prevailed in this section for the past two months, much of it and other crops will be greatly benefited. Pastures and feed crops, as well as gardens, are taking on new life and the indications are that there is no excuse for any of us going hungry yet awhile.

Claud and Henry Dorsey went to Cordele, Ga., Sunday and were accompanied on their return by Kimmie Dorsey, who has been visiting relatives at Cordele.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jenkins of Louisville spent Tuesday with Mrs. F. D. Veal.

Misses Zera King and Eunice Davidson of Troy were guests of Miss Alice Boyd Tuesday.

FARMER JONES AND HIS COW PEN

BY W. M. BRUNSON

"Cows will be the salvation of the farmers of this section." Do you believe that statement? I believe every word of it and it is bound to be true. If that is true, then why not get ready as soon as you can? The sooner this section gets "Cow Minded" the sooner this section will be prosperous. I want to tell you all over again about what the cow will do for you: She will fertilize your land, feed your family, feed your pigs, feed your chickens, feed your turkeys, furnish your table with meat, fill your pocketbook with money and at the same time grow you a fine herd of cows that will be worth much money. Do you know of any other one thing that will do half that much? No, you do not know of any other thing, as there are not any other things which will half way do what the cow will do for you.

Do you ever hear of a man losing his farm who has a nice bunch of good milk cows? I can tell you right now that you do not, and you never will unless there is some providential cause for it. How long before our people will realize the value of cows?

* * *

We are saving all our barn lot fertilizer and we certainly are getting a pile of it. We take it up every morning and put it out of the sunshine and rain and it certainly is fine fertilizer. When we wish to plant something we go to the fertilizer pile and get our fertilizer and we can always make a good crop of anything. In one sense fertilizer that is picked up is free. I am a great believer in saving all that comes free. This country would be prosperous if we had always saved what seemed to come free. If you are not saving your cow lot fertilizer, then get at it at once, as it will pay you better than any other thing you can do. Be sure to protect it from the sunshine and the rain. I want some one to write and tell me how much fertilizer they have saved from one or two cows in a month or six months. Try it out and tell us about it.

Now is the time to plant your turnips and your rutabagas. Take a lot of that good cow lot fertilizer you have been saving and put it down freely under your rutabagas. Plant the seed right in the fertilizer if your ground is good wet. You can not have too much fertilizer, and you can make them as large as your head if you will use good soil and plenty of fertilizer.

* * *

Your turnips will not need so much fertilizer, but they, too, will do well right in the fertilizer. I believe the best way to do it is to bed your land and then open the bed with a shovel. Put your fertilizer in the shovel furrow and run a scooter through it to mix it with the soil. Then let it stand until you get a good rain and plant your seed with a garden hoe right in the fertilizer. There is no end to how many turnips you can make in this way. Do not use sandy land for fall turnips.

* * *

Sallie has already planted her fall turnips. She had the ground all fixed up when the rain came and as soon as it was over she was out there planting her garden. She put a wagon load of fertilizer on a few rows. I said something to her about it, but she 'lowed that her cows made the fertilizer and that we had plenty of it and that she was going to use it freely. I guess there is no use in having it unless you use it. Sallie says she will sell enough turnips off that patch to these cotton farmers and the negroes on their places to pay us for all the fertilizer and have money left. I guess she is right about it and I am going to let Sallie have her way about all the garden matters.

Do you boys know Isiah Maddox? Well, he lives up here in the fork about two miles from Elba and it would pay most of you to go up and see what he is doing. Now, there is a boy who is living at home. They have hogs, cows, chickens, gardens, feed stuff and a lot of it all the time. He not only has hogs, but he has thoroughbred hogs and fine ones, too. He plants some cotton right down in the flats of the river, but he makes all these other things first. I wish you could see his sweet potato patch. It looks like a field to me. That boy will make more potatoes than seven cotton farmers. He lives right near the river and I suspicion he has a fish basket, cause he is smiling nearly every time I see him. That boy is well fed and he is happy during these hard times. Of course he has a good wife and she is mostly responsible for what he does, but he is entitled to some of the credit.

I wish this country was full of men like Isiah Maddox. If it was, we would not have much talk about hard times. Money may be out up at his house, but there can not be any hard times for he has too much to eat. Watch him the next time you see him and tell me if he is not smiling. You could smile too if you would follow his plan of living.

I simply must remind you again about your sweet potatoes. Have you finished your patch? Have you put out every vine that you can put out? Have you used up every possible piece of land that might be put in potatoes? If you have not, then do not let up until every vine is out and every piece of land is used. Just keep on putting them out until the first day of August. Get them out just as soon as you can, as the early ones always make the best but do not stop until the first of August. Let me tell you something about putting out potatoes, and that is, do not stick the vine down in the middle. Always put the large end down, and put your stick about one inch from the end when you go to stick it in the ground. It is also a good idea to cut the leaves off if you have time. They will live much better if you will do so. If you put the vine down in the middle it will not make potatoes like it will the other way.

* * *

Look around and see if you can not find some of your neighbors talking hard times and then watch them and see how much they work putting out potatoes. There are hundreds of folks in Coffee County who are through with their regular farming and who will loaf with their children from now until gathering time, and not put out a single potato vine. A man with a few children to help could take in a piece of land and plant it in potatoes August the first. In the first place, the man must have the determination to do it and then he can do it. Of course, there is no better tonic for a fellow than for him to have a wife who will say what he should do and then tell there will not be any dinner waiting if he goes off to town and frolics his time away.

How do you like one of these town farmers? I mean the fellow who says he is farming but who spends most of his time in town. Did you ever know of a man who was in town every day? He is not a farmer; he is a farm director. Sallie simply will not let me go to town more than once a week and I must have a mighty good reason or she will not let me go that often. Sallie is right about it. I have no business in town so much. I lose time and spend money when I am in town and things at home are neglected. A farmer should stay out of town except when his business demands that he should go.

Elba's Rythm Band Gets Into Rotogravure Section

The kiddy rythm band, under the direction of Miss Annie Laurie Bullard, which made such a hit with the music-loving people of Elba last Spring, got into the rotogravure section of The Birmingham News-Age-Herald last Sunday.

The little folks made a natty appearance in their handsome uniforms. Bandmaster Bancroft Cooper gives the impression that he wants the people to understand that he is at the head of a real musical organization, one which promises to give the folks hereabouts some delightful entertainment the coming season.

WATCH GIVEN AWAY

Miss Mary Irene Hamm was awarded the wrist watch given away at Smith Brothers I. G. A. Store last week.

Another watch will be given away at a later date. The prize to be awarded this week is a handsome set of enamelware. Ask them for details about these free gifts.

Mr. F. H. Murphree returned Saturday evening from a business trip to St. Petersburg, Tampa and other Florida points. He reports that all of that part of Florida he visited except the extreme northern part has had plenty of rain and crops are looking fine. Mr. Murphree also said that he noticed considerable improvement in the business activity down around Tampa on his last trip.

John D. Rockefeller, Sr., celebrated his ninety-second birthday July 8, but many of the customary trimmings were absent, due to the advanced age of the famous finacier. The band concert usually held was cancelled and the aged "oil king" spent the day quetly with members of his family at his magnificent Pocantino Hills, N. Y., estate.

Mr. G. E. Lindsey has the thanks of pedestrians who walk along North Court Street for putting in a safe crossing over a deep ditch, across the street from his residence. The makeshift crossing over this ditch has been in a dangerous condition ever since the flood, over two years ago.

COUNTY AGT. CALLS ATTENTION To CORN FOLLOWING PEAS

I have not had much to say of late about the crops following Winter Peas because there has been very little to say. We all realize that we can plant, fertilize, and cultivate all you want to, but it requires a little rain now and then to make corn. Although the rain has come too late to do the most good possible, I believe most all corn following peas will make a fair to good crop yet.

I would like to call to the attention of the public some fields of corn following winter peas that one can see from the road as you travel about. You can see corn following peas in front of Vocational building at New Brockton, Mr. Joe Brabham on Geneva road, J. N. Wallace on New Brockton-Elba road, T. G. Hildreth, Farmers Academy community, L. J. Dismuke, New Hope community, and B. L. Kelley, at west end of Main Street, Enterprise.

The above is all that I can think of that can be seen from roads without getting out of your car. Why call attention to this? Seeing is believing and since this is a comparatively new crop we need to keep a close watch on the success of the crop and see if it is worthwhile and if so adopt the use of it more generally.

To show what farmers over the State think of it, in 1918 there was a total of 1,135 pounds sowed—enough to seed 76 acres. In 1930 this figure had grown, consistently each year more than the year before, to 1,973,224 pounds—enough to seed 657,741 acres. In 1929 Coffee County farmers sowed 4,000 pounds of peas, and in 1930 they sowed 27,400 pounds.

I feel that we should set a goal of at least 60,000 pounds this fall and see how much this figure can be exceeded. The seed will be the cheapest they have ever been and the hard times and shortage of cash makes it more imperative than ever that the farmer grow his own fertilizer the same as he should grow his own feed for livestock.
